

“ I definitely feel I’ve accomplished so much at such a young age. I would not have thought that at 19 I would be where I am now. That’s the great thing about VET. ”

Tyrone Pynor’s journey

Today Film crew with Special Broadcasting Service (SBS)

2017 Broadcast Trainee with SBS
- Certificate IV in Screen and Media

2014-16 School-based traineeship with NAB
- Certificate II in Business Services

I'm working as TV film crew with the Special Broadcasting Service (SBS). One day I'm on the road filming, the next I'm editing amazing content! Other days I work with TV hosts in the studio, but how did I get here?

Tyrone's story

When I left school I was one of the first Broadcast Trainees that SBS employed and the first high school graduate they have taken on since the 1980's and it's all thanks to my VET qualifications!

I actually started my journey with a school-based traineeship completing a Certificate II in Business Services with the National Australia Bank (NAB).

I gained experience in all aspects of banking services and the value of effective communication in the workplace when dealing with customers, colleagues and managers.

It was during my time at NAB that I realised that my ultimate dream career was in a creative industry. I decided to follow my passion and accepted a traineeship at SBS, gaining my Certificate IV in Screen and Media. Nowadays my job varies from day to day and that's what I love!

My Screen and Media course was so in depth for just a six month course, and compared to a four year Uni course, it was better suited for me. I definitely feel that I've accomplished so much at such a young age. I would not think that at the age of 19 I would be where I am, that's the great thing about VET.

I love the fact that I didn't have to study for years just to find out that I didn't like what I thought I wanted to do.

"The biggest problem coming out of high school for many people is that you don't know what you want to do. I think that's where something like VET is great."
